Having a four-legged family is one of the greatest pleasures of apartment living. You've discovered a pet-friendly apartment in Charlotte that will fit all of your festive needs! Packing your apartment move is tough enough for humans, but animals have no clue why strangers are removing furniture. Like the others of us, pets need a little extra TLC when moving. Fortunately, there are steps that can be taken to facilitate their movement at both ends and on the road. Take your time. Increase packing time over several weeks. Avoid panic on the last day and leave as relaxing a day as possible for you and your pet. Do not change your pet's routine, such as breastfeeding or walking. Dogs and cats need to feel in control, so they can show behavioral changes or get sick when stressed. Treat with the same of caution you would usually give them. Cats are not big fans of change. You can help the cat (and skittish dog) adapt to the moving process by bringing in a moving box early and by keeping your hairy friends in the familiar room you plan to pack at the end. On moving days, keep your pet in a quiet room with the door closed or in a friend's house. This will not scare your cat or dog and will try to make a quick getaway while the movers load the truck. Visit your veterinarian prepared to make your move to a new pet-friendly apartment in Charlotte. A few weeks before moving, request a copy of your veterinary records, a rabies vaccination certificate, and a health certificate. Make sure your pet is up to date with their shots. If your pet is senior or has health problems, ask if mild sedatives are recommended before traveling. Get tags and leashes. If you have a dog or an indoor/outdoor cat, purchase or create an identification tag with a new address and phone number. Make sure your pets wear them during the trip. Pick up a cat lead while you're at it - you'll need it not only if you're taking a long road trip or traveling by plane, but also for the first few days when the fluffy captain will go outdoors in the new neighborhood.
